

Dear Future Member of Bravo Detachment,

On behalf of the fine Soldiers and Families of Bravo Detachment 106th Financial Management Company, I take great pleasure in welcoming you to our outstanding organization. I hope to provide all inbound Soldiers the warmest of welcomes and to provide the critical information required to ease the transition even before the sponsorship process begins.

The Detachment headquarters are in Ansbach, Germany. However, the Company and Battalion headquarters are located in Bamberg and have other units spread across kasernes (bases) throughout Germany and even in Italy. Ansbach is a wonderful town nestled in the hills of Bavaria; I encourage you to begin researching our surrounding on the many available websites and in the ACS packet your sponsor will send to you. The local communities are some of the friendliest and most supportive in Germany. I am sure you will find that these communities offer a great deal of culture, sightseeing and entertainment opportunities.

I encourage all inbound Soldiers to use the S-Gate Sponsorship Gateway. This is an outstanding program that helps inbound Soldiers link up with sponsors. I also recommend visiting the Army OneSource and SITES web pages for helpful relocation information.

Your sponsor should be able to answer most of your questions about your new duty station; however, if you haven't received a sponsor or haven't been contacted by a sponsor, please feel free to e-mail me at Andrew.t.graziano2.mil@mail.mil. I am dedicated to ensuring that you and your family are cared for during this transition.

Once again, welcome to the Bravo Detachment Family. I look forward to your arrival, and I am confident that you will find your tour with the Detachment both challenging and rewarding.

CPT Andrew T. Graziano
Commander, B/106th FMCO
