30th Medical Brigade

The 30th Medical Brigade is the Army's first deployable medical support command, under the operational control of U.S. Army Europe. The unit also maintains a close relationship with the U.S. Army Medical Command.

The 30th Medical Brigade provides medical command and control to deliver timely and responsive support on the battlefield. The brigade has the ability to deploy an operational command post along with other combat service support elements from Europe wherever needed. Subordinate units include Headquarters, Headquarters Company 30th Medical Brigade, the 212th Combat Support Hospital, and the 421st Multifunctional Medical Battalion. The brigade is currently headquartered in Sembach, Germany.

The brigade headquarters provides expeditionary theater-level medical mission command, health service support, force health protection, and medical synchronization of assigned and attached medical forces in support of U.S. Army Europe or any directed global contingency operation.

Its multi-faceted capabilities include Level I, II, and III combat health support, forward surgical support, combat operational stress control, preventive medicine, optometry services, medical logistics, and veterinary services in support of Unified Land Operations.

The 30th Medical Brigade consists of approximately 700 personnel throughout Germany with supporting units located at Miesau Ammo Depot, and Smith Barracks, in Baumholder, Germany.

Deployment Support

Elements from 30th Medical Brigade constantly maintain a deployment readiness posture. The unit has deployed Soldiers to Afghanistan and Iraq, while simultaneously supporting missions throughout Europe and Africa, including disaster relief efforts. The brigade continues to support Operation Enduring Freedom, Kosovo Force, European Command, Africa Command, Central Command, and US Army Europe.
